Messrs. W. T. Wingfield, W. J. Wingfield, and others, swore that Larman worked with them all day Tuesday, and was not out of their presence from 12 M. to 6 P. M.; also, that Larman drank two or three glasses of able and accommodating officers, excellent beer that day, but was not drunk. Other fare, and swift sailing, to all points on the witnesses testified that both Larman and W. James, and to Norfolk and Portsmouth. J. Wingfield were under the influence of iquor on Tuesday.

The prisoner was allowed bail in the sum of $600, but when the court closed for the day had not found sureties.

ANOTHER DEAD INFANT .- Deputy Coroner Tompkins was notified by the police yesterday that the dead body of a newly-born mulatto infant had been found at 408 Duval street. He investigated the case, and ascertained that Eveline Moore, who admitted During the Grand March Rocketts, Roman Casmouth's, on Clay between Fourth and Fifth streets, where she was employed, with her usual spirit and activity. About half-past 12 o'clock, it appears from the facts brought same amount. out at the inquest, the child was born dead. The mother took the body of the infant and ing-ears from some person unknown, was carried it to her cousin's, on Duval street, where, in the evening, she was accused of being its mother, and admitted it. The postmortem examination revealed the fact that of costs. the child was still-born, and at the inquest the jury rendered a verdict that the child grant without visible means of support, was was still-born, but that the mother, Eveline Moore, was guilty of a neglect and ill-treatment towards it such as would have resulted in its death had it been born alive. The Deputy Coroner caused the mother of the who costumed the Grand Carnival in Washington child to be arrested, and she was held in custody until a post-mortem examination was city in 1871, who will take charge, assisted by his made, when she was discharged.

VALUABLE HISTORICAL DOCUMENTS .- The Secretary of the Commonwealth received yesterday from the Public Record Office at London, England, another large instalment of documents ordered by the Committee on the State Library. These papers furnish a complete documentary history of the colony of Virginia from the time the first voyagers were sent out by Sir Walter Raleigh to the revolution of 1776. Among those received yesterday morning was an interesting and authentic "narrative of the rise, progress, and cessation of the late rebellion in Virginia, most humbly and impartially reported by His Mujesty's commissioners appointed to inquire into the affairs of the said colony; accompanying which is a map representing "Bscon's great battle with the Indians," traced from the original in the Public Record Office at London; also, copies of the records relating to the contest that then existed between the colonies of Virginia and North Carolina in regard to the boundary line between the two, accompanied with excellent copies of the maps made by the surveyors engaged in running the boundary line, and traced from the originals furnished by Colonel William Byrd and transmitted as part of his report to the British Government.

A'FREE RIDE AT HEAVY COST .- As the lightning express train of the Fredericksburg railroad, on its way from this city to Baltimore yesterday morning, was passing Green's farm, about six miles from the city, colored man named David Butcher leaned from the rear platform, and was badly hurt. The conductor had not observed his presence, and it is probable that he had gotten on to have a free ride up the road, but seeing the conductor coming towards that end of the train he jumped off rather than meet him. The express train did not stop until it reached Hungary station, a mile or two off, but information of the occurrence was left, and the down accommodation train stopped and picked the man up, and brought him to this city. He was taken to the Second station-house, where his hurts were examined by Dr. C. W. P. Brock, who found that no bones were broken, though he had been GREENBRIER WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS very severely bruised and shocked.
